2 music industry icons perform at PLM

THE Presidential Committee for Arts, Culture and Sports (PCACS) recently staged two PLM Musikahan events that featured two well-known names in the music industry.

The first one was a songwriting lecture that was conducted in partnership with the Filipino Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (FILSCAP). Held last June 30 at the jam-packed Justo Albert Auditorium, the event featured Kean Cipriano, a song writer and the frontman of Callalily, a popular local rock band.

A member of FILSCAP, a non-stock, rights of music copyright owners, Cipriano talked about his experience as a song writer as well as his life as an artist. Saying that every song writer has his or her own unique way of coming out with a song, he told his audience – PLMayers who were thrilled to see their idol up close – that there are no hard and fast rules when it comes to song writing.

Even the inspiration for a song can come from a variety of things, he said, from the most sublime to the most common place. Citing an example, he said, pet dog died."

song to express my grief over his death," anniversary. he added, chuckling.

priano also asked a few volunteers to sing conducted a shortened version of groups of volunteers were swiftly turned songs they have written. Playing his gui- the Contemporary A Cappella Workshops into budding a cappella singing teams after tar, he even tried to put into music a poem that his music school holds regularly in a few minutes of patient coaching by one excited PLM student wrote.

writing resulted in "really cheesy" num- Open, a competition for contemporary day before as part of PLM's Golden bers, he encouraged aspiring song writ- acappella ensemble singing. ers in the audience to keep on writing. "Don't be discouraged if the songs you write don'tturn out well," he said. "Just keep on writing and keep on dreaming!"

The second PLM Musikahan featured Ryan Cayabyab, a widely acclaimed and highly respected Filipino musician, composer and arranger, whose works include theater musicals, choral pieces, pop music and even commercial recorevent served as one

A CAPELLA SINGING. Maestro Ryan Cayabyab explains some of the fine points of a capella ensemble singing to a group of PLM volunteers who joined him on stage during non-profit association that administers the workshop he conducted at the Justo Albert Auditorium, one of the highlights of the the public performance and reproduction University's week-long Golden Anniversary celebration.

ROCK STAR. Kean Cipriano, frontman of the Callalily rock band, engages PLM students "One of the more popular songs I wrote in a lively discussion on songwriting during a workshop organized by PCACS in resulted from the loneliness I felt after my partnership with the Filipino Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (FILSCAP).

"Of course, a few years later, when my of the highlights of the Pamantasan's along two former Akapela Open winners, father died, some people said I wrote the week-long celebration of its 50th 10,000 and PhiSix who both performed to

Attracting another record crowd, Not to be outdone, PLM students also entertaining demonstration of the basics College of Business Management, the of musical composition where he regaled Musicapella champion, and Enomenos his audience by playing "Bahay Kubo" on Harmonix of the Senior High School, the the piano in different styles – progressing first runner-up. Cayabyab congratulated everyone all the way to a classical version unique a cappella signing style which he that sounded like a Mozart sonata.

He then proceeded to a discussion of "That's a very interesting style so I'll dings and musical scorings. Held at the a cappella composition and performance. look into that deeper," he said, giving his Justo Albert Auditorium last July 20, the To demonstrate two different styles of audience a glimpse of the source of his a cappella ensemble singing, he brought genius: Mr. C never stops learning.

the great delight of the audience.

Much to the delight of his audience, Ci- Cayabyab, fondly known as "Mr. C," gamely participated in the workshop. Two various places around the country. His Mr. C. The two winners of Musicapella, Admitting that his first attempts at song school also spearheads the annual Akapela the a cappella contest that was held the Anniversary celebration, also performed. Mr. C began the workshop with an These were the Acaphonix group of the from the usual folk song familiar to both groups and praised them for their described as "tribal."

Vol. 2. No. 1 Intramuros, Manila June-July 2017

Pamantasan turns 50!

THE big day that the Pamantasan ng Lungsod ng Maynila was preparing for over the last three years finally arrived. Last July 17, PLM celebrated its Golden Anniversary.

This was the day 50 years ago when the Pamantasan formally opened its doors to welcome 556 freshman scholars, all coming from the top 10% of the graduating class of Manila's then 29 public high schools. This was the day when PLM started operating as the first tuition-free university in the Philipines and perhaps in

To celebrate this golden milestone, PLM lined up a week-long series of activities that was kicked off by a motorcade around the Intramuros area. Held in the morning of July 17, the motorcade was led by the Manila City Hall Marching Band and was participated in by the different PLM colleges.

(Photos on pages 4-5)

The week-long celebration was highlighted by the blessing of a new building and its turnover by the city government of Manila to the university. Built as a project of the city government, this three-storey structure was formally turned over to the Pamantasan in ceremonies led by Manila Mayor Joseph E. Estrada and PLM President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus (see related

The groundbreaking for yet another building, the Center for Gender Equality, was also held. This building will house the classrooms for the Early Child Care and Development (ECCD) degree program, a new course that PLM will soon offer.

The week's activities included various musical events: a Battle of the Bands, a

Turn to page 6

RIBBON CUTTING. PLM President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus and Manila Mayor Joseph E. Estrada cut the ribbon to officially open the Gusaling Don Emilio Ejercito Sr., the newest addition to the Pamantasan's skyline. Flanking them are (from left) Regent Bienvenido E. Laguesma, Regent Tessie Aquino-Oreta and BOR Chairman Benjamin I. Espiritu.

Manila city government presents PLM with new 3-storey building last July 17.

On its 50th anniversary, the Paman- As a way of thanking the mayor who tasan ng Lungsod ng Maynila received spearheaded the project, the PLM admina truly grand gift from the city govern- istration, with the approval of the BOR, ment of Manila: a gleaming, brand new named the new building after his late father. The building is now known as the Constructed as a project of the city Gusaling Don Emilio Ejercito Sr.

government, the three-storey edifice was Don Emilio was an engineer and alpersonally and formally turned over by though he was born in Pagsanjan, Lagu-Manila Mayor Joseph E. Estrada to the na, he served Manila faithfully for many University officials led by Board of Re- years like a true Manileňo. "He was the gents Chairman Benjamin I. Espiritu and first sanitary engineer of Manila," Mayor PLM President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus Estrada told PLM Today after the inauguration and blessing of the new building.

Turn to page 6

3 new awards given to outstanding graduating PLMayers

AWARDEES. President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus (top photo) gives a congratulatory hug to Ian Sinfuego, the first recipient of the Justice Conrado M. Vasquez Sr. Gawad ng Kadakilaan award, while BOR Chairman Benjamin I. Espiritu (left bottom photo) presents the cash prize to Christina Romella N. Uy, the Atty. Erlinda Espiritu Gawad ng Karunungan awardee. The PLM vice presidents (right bottom photo) congratulate the Team Kimpossible members who were bestowed the Gawad ng Kaunlaran award.

Mr. Ibarra C. Gutierrez

PLM Today

Consulting Editor Prof. Ludmila R. Labagnoy

Ms. Mary Lane D.R. Liporada Ms. Lainna P. Ko Mr. Jasper Royce Dela Cruz

Photographers Mr. Jonathan F. Flores Mr. Jeffrey M. Bagallon

Lav-out Artist Ms. Alyanna Beatrice M. Mendoza

Editorial Coordinator Ms. Concepcion M. Erquiaga

The PLM Today is published by the Office of the Vice President for Public Affairs with office address at Pamantasan ng Lungsod ng Maynila, Gen. Luna cor. Muralla St. Intramuros, Manila, For inquiries or information please call 02-643-25-18 or email us at vppa@plm.edu.ph.

N line with the Pamantasan ng ■ Maynila's commencement exercises theme of "Patuloy sa Pagtataguyod ng Karunungan, Kaunlaran at Kadakilaan," the university administration introduced three new awards that were conferred on outstanding members of the graduating Ombudsman. Class of 2017. Given during the Baccalaureate Service that was held on April cash prizes.

The first award, the Atty. Erlinda Espiritu Gawad ng Karunungan was put up by Dr. Benjamin I. Espiritu, chairman of the PLM Board of Regents, in honor of his late mother Atty. Erlinda Espiritu. The first woman to be accepted in the prestigious Harvard Law School where she earned her Master of Laws degree, Atty. Espiritu was an accomplished lawyer who used her learning – her karunungan – to serve others.

Given to the graduating PLM student with the most outstanding academic record, this award, together standing as a PLM and a Department of with its cash prize of P20,000, was be- Science and Technology scholar, and endstowed on Christina Romella N. Uy, ed up as second best among the graduating the valedictorian of the Class of 2017. batch of the BSCpE program.

The Gawad ng Kaunlaran was the second award that was given during the Baccalaureate Service. Created to honor the graduating PLM student who displayed outstanding creativity, passion and skill to come up with an innovative project that promotes progress, this new award, together with its cash prize of P20,000, was put up by the PLM vice presidents.

This year, however, the university Management Team, headed by President Ma. Leonara V. de Jesus and composed of all the PLM vice presidents, decided to give the award not just to one graduating student but to a team of graduating students: Team Kimpossible. Made up of Jan Kimberly J. Aquino, Jeissel Denise C. Flores, Alice T. Marasigan and Camille I. Soriano, all from the Computer Science Department of the College of Engineering and Technology, this fourman team used their knowledge of technology to create an application that made them National Grand Champion and a World Semifinalist in the Innovation Category of the 2016 Microsoft Imagine Cup.

The third award was the Justice Conrado M. Vasquez Sr. Gawad ng Kadakilaan that President de Jesus put up to honor the legacy of her father, a legal luminary who became a well-respected and widely admired member of the Bench. After serving as an Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals and then as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, he came out of retirement to become the country's first

This new award was created to honor the graduating student who best personi-19. the three awards carried with them fied "the indomitable will to overcome all odds, the unshakeable commitment to follow one's dreams whatever the cost, the spirit of kadakilaan that drives one to be the very best that one can be – undeterred by poverty, by age or even by physical disability."

> This year, this award, together with its cash prize of P25,000, was given to Ian Sinfuego who, despite a disability that would have defeated most people, persevered to finish his studies. Over the entire five years of his computer engineering course, he was able to maintain his good

2017 Career Talks

Successful PLM alumni share their work experiences

CAREER TALKS. Speakers of the 2017 Career Talks pose with their certificates of appreciation. They are (from left) Maria Fe. T. Rodriguez, Dr. Jayson R. Diaz, Emmerie de Guzman, and OGTS head Margielou Peralta.

Pamantasan ng Lungsod ng Maynila who have done well in their chosen careers, gave PLM students a glimpse of what it is like to compete in the real world as they shared their experiences, the lessons they have learned along the way, as well tips for work success during the series of career talks held on March 28-30, 2017 at try's movers and shakers, Wilma Galthe Justo Albert Auditorium. Meanwhile. PLM's annual job fair that was held simul- told would-be professionals to "follow taneously with the career talks attracted your heart but do not follow the trend; 28 companies that accepted applications set clear goals and work and work hard Peralta, OGTS head, underscored the from graduating students, many of whom towards realizing them." were hired on the spot.

Batch 2015 who now manages her own sultant of the Asian Development Bank, Quadrants of Goals" and how a five-year themselves when applying for a job. plan can help young entrepreneurs like her Emphasizing the importance of making a that the majority of those who stay longer she was only 18 years old.

E STABLISHED professionals, including notable alumni of the own businesses after graduation, she gave this advice: "Do not settle for anything less than the best, stick to your plan and consistently drive yourself to reach your goals."

A prominent television producer and considered one of the broadcast indusvante, a member of PLM's Batch 1968, succeed. Following such a plan, she man- good first impression, he said: "If you do in a company are those with high EQs. aged to open her online business when not have a prepared presentation, be the presentation!"

An engineer at the refining division of Petron Corporation, Oliver S. Santos drove all the way from the company's refinery in Limay, Bataan to Intramuros to inspire PLM students and tell them about the many job opportunities that await them in the corporate world.

Other PLM alumni who shared their work experienes with graduating PLMavers included Dr. Eufemia Collao. a Batch1993 member and a PLM scholar who now teaches at the College of Medicine; Arch. Alnie Khayzer Hayudini from Batch 2014 who now works at the Muhibbah Engineering Phils.; and Dr. Javson Diaz, from Batch 2016 who is now serving as administrator of the Luis Co Chi Kiat Foundation, one of PLM's scholarship providers.

The career talks were kicked off by a three-lecture program on labor laws that featured speakers from the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE). In line with the program's theme of "Advancing Career Knowledge through a Better Understanding of Labor Rights," DOLE speakers Maria Fe Rodriguez, Zara Jane Cabrera and Jeremiah Carlos discussed basic labor laws, employees' rights, and administrative rules and policies such as the Anti-Violence against Women and Children Act of 2004.

A presentation by the Office of Guidance and Testing Services (OGTS) was also part of the career talks. Margielou significance of Emotional Quotient (EQ) Erickson Quijano, a member of the which she said is as important as Intel-Emmerie de Guzman, an alumna of the Batch 2007 of the College of Accounligence Quotient (IQ). Millennials have College of Business Management from tancy who is currently working as a con- been tagged as a generation of short patience and are, therefore, often trouonline business, talked about her "Four focused on how graduates should present bled by challenges that can be addressed by improving their EQs, she said, adding Almost 2,000 students participated in the career talks and job fair.

ALCU-AA GAMES CHAMPIONS. Members of PLM's varsity teams pose with President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus (fourth from right) during their courtesy call when they presented the medals they won in the 2017 Association of Local Colleges and Universities - Athletic Association Games held in Lipa City. PLM teams emerged as champions in both the men's and women's divisions in touch rugby, and won medals in swimming and arnis.

2 | PLM TODAY | June - July 2017 June - July 2017 | PLM TODAY | 7

Pamantasan turns 50! From page 1

GROUND BREAKING. Mayor Joseph E. Estrada gamely join PLM officials in the ground breaking er marine organisms." - with notes from rites for the Center for Gender Equality, another building that will soon rise in the University cam- Jaspher Royce D. Dela Cruz pus. With him are (from left) Regent Bienvenido E. Laguesma, BOR Chairman Benjamin I. Espiritu. PLM President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus, Regent Tessie Aquino-Oreta, and ECCDC Executive Director Teresita G. Inciong.

composition and performance conducted

play was about Liliosa Hilao, a PLMayer ative goods. who was killed during the Marcos dicta"It was an overwhelming experience torship. It focused on her heroism and its for me to be a part of the 50th anniversary meaning for today's youth.

fair kept the PLM campus buzzing with the fair, said. "I would like to thank my activity. Spearheaded by the Supreme Stu-fellow PLMayers as well as the PLM addent Council (SSC), the PLM University ministration for supporting our week-long Fair 2017 proved to be a showcase of the fair." creativity and entrepreneurial skills of To close the fair, the SSC gave out nine college student councils, and a group awards to the most artistic and most popof PLM alumni put up 45 booths on the ular booths. The Biological Society was grounds in front of the Tanghalang Bayan. given the Most Creative Booth award dance competition, an a cappella ensem- Smart Communications Inc., the fair's mable singing tilt, a workshop on a cappella jor sponsor, provided most of the booths.

These booths served as recruitment by Maestro Ryan Cayabyab (see story on stations for some of the campus organipage 8), and a Thanksgiving Rock Con-zations that participated, but for the most part – and to the great enjoyment of stu-On July 19, three stagings of "Lili", dents, faculty members, employees and were held at the Justo Albert Auditorium. alumni - they functioned as kiosks that Written and performed by members of the sold mouthwatering delicacies, Golden Magwayen Creative Scholars Group, this Anniversary memorabilia and other crecelebration of our beloved Pamantasan." Throughout the week, a university Hillary N. Baldera, the head organizer of LOYALTY AWARDEES. PLM employees who have worked in the University for 10 years hold the certificates of appreciation given to them during the Loyalty Awards program held last July 21 as part of the University's 50th anniversary celebration. Employees who have been in PLM for 15, 20, 25, 30 and 35 years were likewise honored.

for their creative flower and plants-inspired design, while the Economics Society brought home the People's Choice Award for garnering 2,000 plus "Wow" reactions in the social media contest conducted by the SSC.

"It was actually the first time that the Biological Society participated in this kind of event and it was an exciting and meaningful experience for all of us. Being awarded as the Most Creative Booth was unexpected," Marian Boneo, Biological Society president, said. "We participated in the fair to get the opportunity to share our advocacy to the whole university which is environmental awareness and making a difference through supporting the use of reusable straws to reduce the use of plastic and save the turtles and oth-

Manila city gov't...

GUSALING Don Emilio Ejercito Sr.

"He served under four mayors: Valeriano Fugoso Sr., Manuel de la Fuente, Arsenio Lacson, and Antonio Villegas."

Built as the replacement for the old Gusaling Villgas left wing which was demolished after it was declared unsafe by government engineers, Gusaling Don Emilio Ejercito Sr. has several classrooms, lecture rooms, laboratories and a well-equipped audio-visual room. It will also house PLM's executive offices, frontline offices and the employees' lounge.

According to the marker that was unveiled by Mayor Estrada and President De Jesus, it was built in line with the mayor's vision "to provide the future leaders of his beloved city with a conducive place for study where they can imbibe the knowledge and values" that will make them worthy sons and daughters of Manila.

PLM holds 49th commencement exercises

OD will never give you a dream U without giving you the ability to to accomplish it. Own your dreams and be committed to attaining them."

This was the message that Christina Romella N. Uy, the valedictorian of the Class of 2017, gave to her fellow graduates during the 49th commencement exercises of the Pamantasan ng Lungsod ng Maynila held last April 21 at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Now a holder of a Bachelor of Science she shared her story of struggles, perse-follow their dreams. verance and success.

"My life journey from being a black sheep – a batang lansangan – to class valedictorian is proof that we are the directors of our own lives," she said in her valedictory address. "We may have committed irrevocable mistakes in the past, but we are also the ones responsible for steering our ships back to the right route."

Citing Dale Carnegie, she said, "Most of the important things in the world are accomplished by people who keep on trying even when there seems to be no hope. And we PLMayers are living proof of this quote."

This was echoed by PLM President Ma. Leonora V. de Jesus in her message to the graduates where she reiterated her cited PLM for nurturing its students and and above do not get to college. This is petitions and especially in board exams despite the fact that the school facilities, kilaan. although continuously being upgraded, still fall short of the ideal.

that were honed in you by your years at useful citizens who will contribute to our the citizens who funded your education." PLM - are the very things that will city's and our country's kaunlaran and ka- In his message to the graduates, Manila enable you succeed in your future dakilaan, "he said. endeavors," the president said.

of excellence to the 65 cum laude and six speaker for the afternoon session, told the received at PLM has prepared you well magna cum laude graduates of the Class graduates that they are "the fortunate ones for the outside world. The knowledge, of 2017 on which she bestowed the dis the less than one million Filipinos gradthe values, the discipline and, above all, tinction of being PLM's "Golden Batch" uating from college this year." since 2017 is also the university's 50th "A college degree is not something to be provide you with all the advantages that anniversary.

Retired Supreme Court Associate Jus- the PLM Board of Regents, said. tice Arturo D. Brion, who was the commencement speaker for the morning ent circumstances, are unable to pur-you are now ready to go out into the world session of the graduation ceremonies, also sue higher learning. In fact, over 40 to help transform our city and our country in Accountancy degree, Uy led her batch VALEDICTORY ADDRESS. Christina Romella N. Uy, the valedictorian of PLM's Class of made up of 2,393 graduates with whom 2017, shares her life story with her fellow graduates and tells them to persevere and

GRADUATION SPEAKERS. The two guests of honor in PLM's 49th graduation rites. Retired Supreme Court Justice Arturo D, Brion (left) and Budget Secretary Benjamin E. Diokno, congratulate the graduates and exhort them to contribute to the country's admiration for PLM students who perform preparing them to be productive citizens a despairing truth that cannot be ignored." very well in academics, inter-school comby inculcating in them the three core val Diokno however, reminded the graduues of karunungan, kaunlaran and kada- ates that earning their college degrees is

Budget and Management Secretary thing. Congratulating the graduates, President Benjamin E. Diokno, the commencement taken for granted," the former chairman of you will need," he said. "I have just one congratulated the graduates. He likewise million Filipinos aged 17 years old into a better place."

not their achievement alone. "It is the "I salute the Pamantasan and the City fruit of your hard work, combined with the "The willingness to work hard and of Manila on this occasion as you have enormous support from many people," he the determination to overcome any ob- once more delivered and proven your said. "Be thankful to them. And as scholstacle that comes your way - attributes capacity to prepare our youths to be ars of the City of Manila, be thankful to

Mayor Joseph E. Estrada said the same

"I am confident that the education you the work ethic that you learned there will request: Please make today's graduation "Many Filipinos, hindered by differ- ceremony a celebration of the fact that

6 | PLM TODAY | June - July 2017 June - July 2017 | PLM TODAY | 3

4 | PLM TODAY | June - July 2017 | PLM TODAY | 5